SANDY MAUDLIN

PAINTING WATERCOLOR WITH A BATIK LOOK

April 13-16, 2010
To be held at The Woods of Castleton Apartments, 9am-4pm

If you're a watercolorist and also love the look of batik, this workshop is for you. Using regular watercolors on Arches paper, Sandy Maudlin will guide you as you create your own original batik-like masterpieces.

Each day will be filled with plenty of painting time as well as helpful demos and clear instructions. Strong emphasis will be given to composition and design throughout this four day workshop. Individual as well as group critiques will also help to further encourage your artistic growth.

You will be painting from your own subject matter as you learn how to incorporate this special batik-look-alike technique into your own personal painting style. Fascinating textures and color surprises enhance this wonderful batik-like process.

Sandy Maudlin holds a degree from IU in art education and has been teaching watercolor for twenty years. She and her husband live near Cincinnati in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, where she teaches several weekly classes in her studio.

She is a signature member of WSI and Ohio Watercolor Society and has been awarded numerous Best of Shows, including ones from both WSI and OWS.

Her work relies heavily on value contrast, and she loves to incorporate exciting textures and subtle color changes within shapes.

Maudlin loves being an artist, finding that it's never a 'job' and it never ends. Art has become a way of life for her, and yet she says, "It's hard work to create the vision inside my head and the feelings within my heart."
